- Abigail R.: do you know any...
- Alex S.: How about next week?
- Felicia A.: oh no biggie!

To the right, a section titled 'Time for a Match!' shows two user photos and the text 'challenge your match to Rock Paper Scissors! (winner gets to pick who talks first!)'. At the bottom, there are three circular icons representing Rock, Paper, and Scissors.

Carmen Amaya (1918-1963)
the greatest Spanish gypsy dancer of her generation

Flamenco dance is a highly-expressive, Spanish dance form. Flamenco dancers try to express their deepest emotions by using body movements and facial expressions. As the dancers perform, they may also clap their hands or kick their feet. Many dancers also snap small percussion-handheld instruments called "castanets." It is essentially a solo dance characterized by hand clapping, percussive footwork, and intricate hand, arm, and body movements.
